

TYPES OF SEAMS

USES

CONSTRUCTION SEAMS
 C100 FELLED SEAM	It is appropriated for just about any location on the garment such as shoulders and side seams. Lined garments and no-exposed seams. Accessories: bags, footwear, home decor.
 C101 BOUND SEAM	High-quality garments. Neckline seam of t-shirts and polos. Unlined jackets, coats and outerwear in general. Reversible garments.
 C010 FRENCH SEAM	Commonly used on woven fabrics such as sheer, lace and most light-weight fabrics. Side seams and sleeve seams of blouses and shirts. High-end garments.
 C110 WELT SEAM	Widely used on clothing made of denim fabric such as jeans, shirts, skirts, and jackets. Shirts: shoulder and yoke seams. Trousers: crotch and side seams.
 C120 LAPPED SEAM	These seams work well on fabrics that do not flare such as leather, suede, vinyl, and lace. Irregular shaped edges and curved seams. Bags and accessories.
 C200 OPEN SEAM	They work better on woven fabrics of medium and heavy-weight. Lined garments such as jackets and coats. Accessories, for instance bags and shoes.
 CD190 SANDWICH SEAM	Yoke and shoulder seams of shirts and blouses. Yoke of skirts and trousers/pants. Neckline seam with collar. Cuffs.

TYPES OF SEAMS

USES

HEMS & FINISHES
 H110 FOLD HEM	Suitable on hems of most types of clothing, especially those made of woven fabrics. Narrow plackets and slits. Pockets opening.
 H101 BOUND HEM	High-quality garments. Ideal for curved hems. Necklines. Hems of reversible garments.
 H150 FACED HEM	Armholes and necklines of sleeveless tops and dresses. Plackets of shirts, blouses, and jackets. Bottoms of tops, dresses, and skirts. Hems cut on the bias.
 H200 BINDED EDGE	Necklines and cuffs (or armholes on sleeveless tops). Narrow plackets. It works great on curved and bias-cut edges. Bags, accessories, footwear, and home decor.
 H210 EXPOSED BAND	Necklines of t-shirts, tops, and dresses. Ribbed necklines. Armhole edges of sleeveless tops and dresses. Gathered hems with elastic band.
 H000 UNHEMMED EDGE	Casual clothing. Bottom of full skirts made in light-weight fabrics. Fur industry. Bags and accessories.
 HD190 SANDWICH HEM	Hems of lined garments. Collars, lapel edges, and hoods. Reversible garments. Bags and accessories.

TYPES OF SEAMS

USES

DETAILS

 D110 PLEAT		Commonly used on women's clothing: waist, hip, and bust area. Cuff seam of shirts and blouses. Accessories such as hats and bags.
 D111 BOX PLEAT		Shirts: backside, just below the yoke. Patch pockets. Skirts and trousers/pants. Bags and accessories.
 D210 PATCH		Patch pockets: jeans, trousers, shirts, etc. Elbow patches. Bags and accessories. Appliqué.